Guest bloggers

Are you a country expert with a passion for writing? If some, you could become one of Far and Wild Travel's guest bloggers.

Far & Wild Travel is a specialist travel company based in the Lake District and London. We arrange tailor-made holidays to Africa, South & Central America, the Indian Ocean, India, Sri Lanka and the Middle East.

We are looking for real country experts to write additional blogs for our website…. It could be writing predicting this year's Okavango Delta flood levels, a guide to when best to visit the Masai Mara, a guide to whale watching in South Africa, how to see a river crossing at the Great Migration or the best family friendly lodges in Africa.

Tell me more….

- Blog titles will be agreed with our Marketing Manager in advance – but please do put forward ideas
- All blogs must be 100% original content (no copy paste anywhere please – if this is found we would not publish or pay)
- Blogger must ensure that the content they are providing is factually correct
- All blogs must a minimum of 1,500 – 2,000 words
- Blogs must be written to an excellent standard of English
- Blogs will be reviewed, fed back on and may require amendments being made
- Properties included must be from the Far & Wild website
- Bloggers must show to have a clear understanding of the types of holidays Far and Wild organise.
- All blogs not up to standard will not be published and no payment made
- All authors will be credited as a guest blogger on the site
- $100 per blog

Far & Wild Travel are an equal opportunities employer and welcome candidates from all aspects of life. If you feel you're up to the challenge and want to apply, please send CV and covering letter to eliza@farandwild.travel. Please include the country you are interested in writing about, any previous blogs written and some suggestions for a blog you would be interested in writing.

All applications will be acknowledged within 5 working days.

26th September 2022